Prop 45 Allows Corporations to Pollute While We Pay

- Funded by data center and warehouse developers, oil companies, PG&E, and other for-profit utility giants
- Limits public oversight of polluting projects
- Leaves CA vulnerable to Trump's climate rollbacks
- Likely impacts:
 - Air and water pollution
 - Greater health risks
 - Higher utility bills
 - $100M+ in annual costs for state and local governments
(official LAO estimate)

Weakens Regulation of Data Center Development

- Dramatically weakens public's ability to set limits on data center development
- Data center impacts can include:
 - High energy/water consumption
 - Air pollution from diesel generators
- Reduced oversight = higher utility and healthcare bills
- Data center developer and utilities have contributed $10M+ to the Yes on Prop 45 campaign
- Overrides recently enacted protections (SB 887), may supersede 2026 Imperial County court decision

Prop 45 Won't Promote Affordable Housing, Clean Energy, or Sustainable Transit

- Most urban housing development already exempt from environmental review. AB 130 (2025)
- Prop 45 will have no effect on rent/mortgages
 - Includes no requirements that developers pass on savings to renters
 - Designed to increase developer profits for new sprawl subdivisions
- Most clean energy/transit projects already streamlined or exempt
 - Some Prop 45 deadlines are slower than current deadlines for: solar, wind, geothermal, rail, bike, and bus projects. AB 417 (2013); AB 205 (2022); SB 149 (2023); SB 71 (2025)
- Prop 45 excludes high-speed rail but fast-tracks freeway expansions
- YIMBY Action, CA YIMBY, Abundant Housing LA, and other pro-development groups have refused to support Prop 45
